MIDWINTER AUCTION BEGINS.

KINGMOND THE STAR OF OPEN-ING DAY'S SALES.

He Is Bought by C. Boland, a Speedway Recruit, for $3,000 -Who Is It, Louise Mac, and Equity Realize Good Prices -Choice Bargains at the Garden.

The midwinter horse auction opened at Madison Square Garden yesterday morning and prices realized throughout the day, although above the average for the stock offered, seemed somewhat in the buyers' favor. Kingmond, 2:00, that raced so well during 1899-1900 and although outclassed last season showed ability to trot in 2:07, brought $3,000, a good sum after a horse has gotten by the stake era of his career. C. Boland, a recent addition to the Speedway fleet, secured the horse. Kingmond rarely breaks, is a model-mannered fellow and good for fully five active seasons, so he is surely a prize. His stable mate, Who Is It, 2:10%, went to the bid of the veteran Worcester road driver, R. C. Taylor, owner of Abbie V. 2:16% Oestes, 2:20, and others. In 1899 Who Is It brought some $3,600 at Cleveland, yet he raced successfully, earning well above $5,000, so selling as he did for $1,850 is indic-

David Lamar, after bidding on Kingmond and Who Is It, bought King, 2:13%, for $1,125 and secured a bargain for road or racing. He refused a profit of $250 immediately and also refused to set a price. Arthur Lape, another Speedway leader, purchased James Shevlin, 2:13%, at a bargain price and refused $200 advance after half an hour's owner-ship. Senator McCarty paid about $3,000 for him as a green trotter, so his figure, $650, was in reality below his real value. He should be a star of the highest degree on the Speedway to wagon and is a younghorse.

Ed de Cernea picked up Equity, 2:12½, the Buffalo whirlwind, for $750, and Charles Weiland added the leviathan trotter Mosul, 2:00½, at $300, a bargain figure. Christopher Weiland added the leviathan trotter Mosul, 2003, at $300, a bargain figure. Christopher Hackett, owner of Kig Tom, 2:194; George A. Coleman, the popular stabler, and a few others from the Speedway contingent were listed among the buyers. Pretty little Louise Mac, 2:004, was sold for but $1,500 to John Maguire. John H. Shults wanted her to add to his 2:10 brood mares at Parkville Farm, but stopped at $1,000. She is a beautiful mare, but our Speedway trotters never resell here at leading prices. Louise Mac cost Mr. Gwathiney $3,730 in 1899 and had he mated her would have been retained. He offered $5,000 for Dione, 2:071/3, only to be refused, and, always driving double, had no use for the chestnut queen, hence her sale. The storm did not keep the crowd down and Frank Herdie, who assisted Col. George Bain in the box, met with ready success in securing rapid-fire bidding. Many were there to buy speed, and those more prominent noticed were:

PEDLAR PALMER BEATEN. Knocked Bown Three Times in First Round by London Pugilist.

Special Cable Despaich to THE SUK.

LONDON, Jan. 27.—Williams, a London
pugilist, beat Pedlar Palmer in a match at the National Sporting Club to-night for £100 a side and a purse of £150. Palmer was favorite at odds of 2 to 1, but he never justified his backers. Williams knocked im down three times in the first round. Palmer adopted rushing tactics in the second round, but fell exhausted after a minute's fighting and was counted out.

PROPOSED FRENCH HENLEY. Contemplated Scheme Includes Plan to Make Meulan a Centre for Sports. Special Cable Despatch to THE SUN.

PARIS, Jan. 27.-M. Deutsch, the donor of the prize for a dirigible balloon that was won by Santos-Dumont, proposes to create a French Henley at Meulan, twenty-five miles from Paris. He hopes to initiate a regatta during the coming summer The scheme further contemplates making Meulan a general centre of sports.

COMMODORE JAMES RE-ELECTED.

Annual Meeting of the Seawanhaka Corinthian Yacht Club-New Rules. The annual meeting of the Seawanhaka Corinthian Yacht Club was held last night at Delmonico's and the attendance of members was very large. Commodore A. Curtiss James presided and the officers and comnittees made reports to the members on the ing condition. There is a waiting list for membership and the Treasurer's report shows that financially the organization is strong. The report of the regatta committee showed that there had been more racing last some time ago the members decided to have a town house and a company was formed of members who made arrangements to build a bachelor apartment house the lower floors of which were to be rented by the club and the upper floors rented to members. The committee having this new house in hand rethe upper floors rented to members. The committee having this new house in hand reported last night that things were progressing favorably. A spiece of property will be secured shortly and the erection of the house begun. It is hoped that the new quarters will be ready for occupancy at the end of the coming yachting season.

Some additions were made to the racing rules to govern centre-boards. These new rules are as follows:

Yacats may have the use of centre-boards excepting as these are affected by the provisions which follow:

Centre-boards shall not have more weight than is needed to fissure their sinking into proper position for use, and the limit shall be considered as reached when the centre-board has a weight 25 per cent. greater than that of the water displaced by it.

Centre-bards weighing less than 150 pounds shall be exempt from the provisions of this rule.

Vessels having use of centre-boards of the prescribed weight at or prior to duly 1, 1901, shall be exampt from the provisions of this rule.

Owners of centre-board yachts shall, when required, certify to the measurer that the centre-boards used are within the limitations stated.

The following officers and committees were elected for the year:

Gans Wins From Dale and Bash Proves

Too Much for Lewis. Albert Gans and Montague Dale, Albert Gans and Montague Dale, both playing 165 points, were the contestants yesterday afternoon in the handicap tourney for amateurs, 14-inch balk line at Daly's Dale met with his fourth straight defeat, but did not succumb without giving his opponent a hard tussle. He was beaten by only five points. He made a number of double-figure runs, but also a number of goose eggs.

Mode of Attack, and Also Advocates Steady Jabbing - Roster of the American League for the Coming Season.

Tommy Ryan, who has been pronounced one of the eleverest boxers in the world, has some ideas about the game which are worth reproducing in these days of prog-ress. Ryan is above the average in point of intelligence so that fighters will be in-clined to pay some attention to this review: "To my way of thinking the most impor-tant factor in a glove contest between two good and evenly matched men is an experienced referee. Fighters of to-day are inclined to be tricky and a referee who has not had much experience in officiating is very easily fooled by crafty boxers. In regard to fouls it is my belief that a contest commits one deliberately. The question of whether the man fouled is injured enough to hurt his chances of winning by the foul blow should be taken into consideration by the referee. The best referees in this country to-day are George Siler, Charley White, Tim Hurst and Harry Corbett. I think the most dangerous by the foul think the most dangerous by the country to-day are George Siler, Charley White, Tim Hurst and Harry Corbett. I landed. think the most dangerous blows are those landed on the pit of the stomach, the point of the jaw, the heart and the blow aimed under an opponent's right arm so as to on the side. A blow there will almost always find the muscles of an opponent's arm re-on the side. A blow there will almost always find the muscles of an opponent's arm relayed.

"The blow hurts more in consequence as the muscles do not afford the protection they would if tightened. This punch is not often expected in the ring and is all the more valuable. A man instinctively keeps the muscles on his left side rigid and ready to receive a blow, which, consequently, is of less value than the wailop on the other side. A man jabbed steadily in the mouth or nose or chin or pit of the stonach, is worn down gradually, just as a runner is worn down by a long-distance race. If a clever boxer picks out one of these vital points and can land often enough on the same spot, he is almost certain to win. Like the constant dropping of water which will wear away a stone, the blow tells on the recipient little by little, and the jabbing is of value as it does not expose the sender of the blows to the same risks that he would sustain if he kept trying for knock-out punches.

"This jabbing method may seem a brutal way to whip a man, but it is the surest just so long as the same place is landed on. Oftentimes you see a boxer who has his opponent whipped through landing a blow or a series of blows on the stomach, only to find him change his plan of attack to the apparently beaten man's face in the next round, thus giving him time to recover. Sticking to the stomach would have won many fights under these circumstances. On the whole body fighting is preferable to trying for the head when the object is to wear down an opponent. It is easier to land on the body than on the face and blows take the steam out of an opponent more rapidly when driven into the stomach, heart, ribs and kidneys."

Deponent more rapidly when driven into the stomach, heart, ribs and kidneys."

Eddie Lenny, the Philadelphia feather-weight who knocked George Dixon out at Baltimore last week, has improved wonderfully, so experts say, and stands a good chance to get into championship form. In point of science, Lenny is without a peer in the feather weight class. He is a great blocker and a fast, shifty boxer of the Joe Gans type. Dixon was unable to put a glove on him in their bout which is sufficient proof of the Quaker's oceverness. In past encounters, however, Lenny's principal weakness was in hitting. He never showed that he possessed the knockout punch characteristic of both McGovern and Young Corbett. Instead he displayed his best attack in Jabbing at long range, a style that often wearies the more bloodthirsts sports. It was jabbing and a constant rain of stomach blows that beat Dixon, but if Lenny had been able to hit as some featherweights can he would have put Dixon to sleep much earlier in the game. With this latest victory to his credit, Lenny wants to try conclusions with Young Corbett for the championship, but he might do well to try himself out with McGovern first. Unless the Philadelphia boxer has improved his punching a hundred per cent since he was last seen here, it is believed that he will have a difficult task cut out for him either by Terry or the latter's recent conqueror. It has been time and again demonstrated conclusively that a boxer, pure and simple, no matter how clever he may be, has little chance with a man who can rush and slug in a scientific way.

For the first time in pugilistic annals a

CURRENT SPORTING GOSSIP.

I most pronounced. There has been plenty of rough play, which seems, by the way, to be in popular demand. It was only the other night that two college teams were playing a smooth, scientific game of hockey, entirely devoid of rough features, when the crowd devoid of rough features, when the crowd devoid of rough features, when the crowd began to hiss and how as a sign that parior tactics were not wanted. As soon as the teams got right down to slashing business, there was a great outburst of enthusiasm, which lasted until the battle ended.

FOR UNDERGRADUATES ONLY. Harvard and Yale Alumni Ask for Radical Change in Sports.

The matter of another agreement in sports between Harvard and Yale is receiving considerable publicity just now and there is much conjecture as to what is being done.

The question is in abeyance. Nothing is being done at present, not because there is any hitch, but because the time is not ripe to bring the matter to an issue. There are no stumbling blocks in sight; the subject simply is on the shelf for the time being. simply is on the shelf for the time being. In connection with Harvard-Yale sports, however, a number of graduates of both universities are taking active interest, particularly along the line of purity at the two institutions and a somewhat radical departure is being worked up by these alumni. It is said on excellent authority that some fifty of them will write, if they have not already done so, to the athletic authorities at Harvard and Yale recommending that Harvard and Yale recommending that Harvard and Yale recommending that Harvard and Yale sports in the future be confined to undergraduates. When is considered the number of stars in the different athletic branches this regulation would have barred had it been in effect, the radical nature of the proposed rule may be understood. It will keep off 'Varsity teams all post-graduates, and that whether they have played four years or not; also members of graduate schools, such as law or medicine. In other words the rule will restrict teams to acquidence and other strictly undergraduate departments and keep off men who go from one college direct to another and become eligible after a year's residence. The athletic heads at the two colleges are Prof. Hollis at Harvard and Walter Camp at Yale, and through them the colleges will be brought face to face with the suggestion.

"This plan will make better sport and stronger teams," said one yesterday, who is trying to put it through. "It will mean greater loyalty on the part of the athletes." In connection with Harvard-Yale sports.

For the first time in pugilistic annals a heavyweight championship match has been declared off because one of the principals indulged in a fake. There is no record of a transaction such as the killing of the Jeffrey-Sharkey mill for the reason that the Sallor "eased it" with Peter Maher, That the move is in the right direction there can be little doubt. It will prove a lesson to other fighters who are inclined to fool the public whenever an opportunity presents itself. Somebody has suggested a black-listle for fake fighters which might be respected by club promoters all over the United States. This idea is impracticable but it suggests the advisability of adopting some method by which evildeers may be barred from method by which evildeers may be barred from fighters which evildeers may be barred from method by which evildeers may be barred from fighters which evildeers may be barred from method by which evildeers may be barred from fighters which evildeers may be barred from method by which evildeers may be barred from fighters which in the right of the proposed in the
